U16 Hurling Draws To A Close:

Defeat in the Shield Final brought a curtain down on the U16 Hurling year for the Blues. While wins were hard to come by, we fully believe the young players have learned a lot this year and will continue to progress in years to come. Key to this was the great work of Tomás Ryan and his management team of Ronan McCormack, Noel Frawley, Pakie McCormack and Conor Clancy. We thank the players and management for their efforts.

Senior Campaign Ends:

Our Senior Hurlers 2015 campaign came to a sudden and disappointing finish last weekend Clonlara had a nine point winning margin. Ultimately our second half display came nowhere near the standards these players have hit in recent times. C.L.G. Cora Chaitlín would like to thank the players for their effort and commitment since training commenced back in January of this year. We welcomed Colin Lynch to the role of manager and we must praise him and his management team of Brian Enright, Sean Arthur and Martin Ryan for their dedication and belief in the team. It won’t be easy but the Blues will be back!

POLAND PILGRIMAGE:

Lara’s Story*:

Lara is a Palestinian from Syria and 40 year old mother of four. She has been living in Lebanon for the past 2 years where she fled with her twin girls now aged 7 yrs. Lara was married at the age of 15 and has a son and daughter in their 20’s. Since the beginning of the conflict in Syria more than 4 years ago, Yarmouk refugee camp, has been besieged for long periods by Syrian armed forces, so that many people had little or no access to food. Some of the worst affected resorted to eating domesticated animals and grass. Lara and her second husband both activists in Syria had been involved in trying to bring food supplies into Yarmouk refugee camp, Damascus. One day while driving with Lara and their two daughters her husband was shot by sniper fire. Her husband died, but Lara and her young children survived the car crash. Lara decided to leave Syria for the sake of her young daughters and managed to get safe passage for them, and her older son and daughter to Lebanon. To leave Yarmouk herself, Lara was forced to rely on the courage of a stranger, who agreed to smuggle her out of the camp in the boot of his car, at great risk to both of them. She then walked toward the border and crossed the anti-Lebanon mountain range to the Lebanese border in the freezing cold, spurred on by the hope of being re united with her daughters.

In Lebanon despite having no family or personal connections, she found shelter amongst the large Palestinian community there and set about finding somewhere reasonably safe and affordable to live. She also had to seek help in dealing with the multiple traumas suffered by her young daughters. These young girls had witnessed the brutal murder of their father, narrowly escaped death themselves, and then experienced a violent re location from their own homeland to Lebanon initially forced to leave their mother behind.

Since the beginning of the crisis in Syria 4 years ago, more than 55,000 Palestinians fled into Lebanon seeking shelter and support amongst host communities there. These communities in Lebanon were already amongst the most marginalised, and the additional burden has added immensely to the poverty, stress and tension. The situation and status of the Palestinian community in Syria was relatively speaking much better than in Lebanon, with better access to social services, jobs and property rights. This means the displacement of that community into Lebanon and the dramatically reduced living conditions has been experienced by many as a double trauma. Lara is currently working with a local Syrian organisation seeking to provide support to the most vulnerable Syrians, and Palestinian communities now living in Lebanon.
